

Marie Iannotti

SPEAKER • AUTHOR • PHOTOGRAPHER

Connect With Marie on Social Media:

GardeningTheHudsonValley

@ValleyGardening

Contact me at: 845-382-6967

www.GardeningTheHudsonValley.com

TALKS:

Why Grow Old? - Delicious Heirloom Vegetables

Heirloom vegetables are so much more than trendy tomatoes.

Edible Landscaping Realities

It is possible to eat your yard, if you don't mind sharing.

A Gardener's Tour of the Hudson Valley

This is where American garden design first took shape.

Some Past Audiences:

- The Horticultural Society of New York
- The New York Botanical Garden
- Heritage Harvest Festival at Monticello
- Hudson Valley Garden Association Garden Fair
- Penn State Great Valley School of Graduate Professional Studies

About Marie:

Marie is a Master Gardener emeritus, as well as a former Cornell Cooperative Extension Horticulture Educator. She has been the gardening expert at About.com for a decade and writes no-nonsense gardening advice and shares her love of the Hudson Valley at www.gardeningthehudsonvalley.com. At heart, she is a gardener who writes, photographs, and speaks about gardening. Slightly irreverent. Always enthusiastic.

Specializing In:

Making gardening inspirational and approachable. It's not about trends or status or the best garden money can buy. Gardening, like life, is about the discovery.

Books currently available in stores and online.

The writing here is as crisp as the layout, which uses colored page edges and a simple, slightly-New Englandy sense of style to get its point across. Best of all, it's hard to think of anything NOT covered here... and yet there's no sense of the text book in these pages, and only that homey feel one gets while actually gardening.

—The Woodstock Times